NEW YORK, Dec. 2.—Not knowing what is in store for him Europe, he became known this afternoon that Henry Ford made his will last night, turning over all his stock in the Ford and other companies he control to his son, Edsel. He also decided to his son power of attorney for his entire business affairs.

The spots of peace announced his intention of going into both England and Germany, although he said that he did not expect his followers to accompany him. He declared that he had a perfect right to enter those countries, having business there.

WOULD BAR PEACE MEN FROM NORRIS

Boston voters, particularly city employees and school teachers, today received through the mail copies of a circular letter signed "Otis S. Phillips" and purporting to advocate the election of the four Good Government candidates for the City Council.

These four candidates, after seeing the letter, denounced it as a "political trick." They said it was intended to defeat the very men it pretended to support. They said it was an unscrupulous campaign tool for Curley.

Thomas J. Kenny spoke of it as purely a hoax, and an "old war-horse" of the city.

The Good Government four, James J. Sherris, John J. Axtell, Walter L. Collins and Thomas J. Ryan, issued two statements denouncing the letter. The first was as follows:

"This circular was obviously sent out from the same house where William Hervey lives, as a device of Curley to misrepresent our position."

Anyone who is familiar with our records knows that the statements with regard to our attitude toward the peace in the eyes of the city are equally false. The circular said the election of the four Good Government candidates would make it possible to inaugurate reforms necessary to prevent further increases in the tax rate. The circular, estimated some of these reforms as a reduction in salary for city officials, a reduction in salary for school teachers, and a campaign of economy in city work generally, and the circular referred to hostile terms to Mayor Curley because he "could have prevented" increases in salary in the fire and police departments.

The Good Government four did not seem at once to discuss the letter with school teachers, as reports had come in from scores of teachers who had received copies. They learned that the address of

BLAMES JITNEY FOR LOSS TO CAR LINES

Chronicle a tale of financial sorrow, the sixteenth annual report of the Massachusetts Electric Company, issued today, charges its greatest loss for the year to the competition of the jitney bus.

President Gordon Abbott of the Massachusetts Electric Company, which is the holding concern for the Bay State and six other street railway lines, estimates that the Bay State is losing $100 a day through the bus migration of the jitney.

"During the year a new form of competition appeared in the territory served by the Bay State Company, namely, the so-called 'jitney,' he says. It first appeared at Fall River, and gradually extended through the territory served by the company, to such an extent that on November 1, last, there were 215 jitneys and jitney buses licensed in twelve cities and towns, and seventy-one were being operated in cities where no license was required. Last month this competition caused an estimated loss to the company of about $700 per day.

To the jitney, increased expenses and decreased receipts and to the Interstate Commerce Commission, which prescribed the necessity of setting aside funds each year for depreciation of stock, President Gordon ascribes the reasons why the company this year was obliged to decrease dividends some $100,000.

The report shows the operating revenue for the year to be $5,535,496.51, a loss of $17,746.39, and the operating expenses at $5,553,242.90, an increase of $458,885.69. The net operating revenue showed a loss over last year of $445,434.38.

As an excuse of the reason, President Gordon says, which prompted the Bay State to ask for the six-cent fare.

President Gordon estimated that the Bay State arbitration case will result in increased wages amounting to $175,000 between September 23, 1914, and October 1, 1916.

RENEWS QUEST FOR ROXBURY TRANSFERS

The Roxbury Board of Trade has sent a letter to Chairman Frederick T. March of the Public Service Commission, requesting transfers at Dudley street.

The letter reads, in part: "We inclose a letter from our counsel, Mr. Halliway, in which he calls attention to the fact that in the action of your commission relative to the proposed changes at Light House Square, by the Boston Elevated Railway, you do not mention anything about our present situation at Dudley street, and transfer which we asked for at that place."

As you promised our chairman, Mr. Halliway, that your commission would recommend said transfers at said station to the next General Court, we write to inquire whether or not you have changed your mind on this subject, or whether this will be included in your recommendations."

SOCIETY HAPPENINGS

MISS WEBSTER MAKES BOW

MRS. R. W. KNOWLES TO ENTERTAIN LARGELY

MRS. ROBERT W. KNOWLES

This granddaughter of the poet Longfellow will hold many society events at her Cambridge home during the coming season.

A hostess whose residence will be the scene of many society events this season is Mrs. Robert Webster Knowles, who was Amelia C. Thayer, granddaughter of the poet Longfellow. The Cambridge Braintree street mansion at Longfellow Park has been the center of numerous society gatherings since the day following the 1913 wedding of the couple.

Mrs. Knowles as Miss Thayer will be remembered by many as one of the stars in "The College Hero." As a former Radcliffe undergraduate she took part in numerous dramatic events in college. She is also a member of the Vincent Club. The reception following the Thayer-Knowles wedding was at the famous Longfellow House in Cambridge.

The first great delectable ball of the season comes this evening, when Mrs. Robert Webster Knowles will introduce their second daughter, Miss Rachel Webster, to Boston society. The presentation will be at the Copple-Tan and Laffey ball.

Miss Webster will be introduced by her father, Mr. Robert Webster, who will be assisted by her brother, Mr. Robert Webster. The ball will be given in the evening at the Copple-Tan and Laffey ball.

CONSERVATOR CLAIMS POLICE FOR EX-JUDGE WATERMAN

GAVE FALSE EVIDENCE

CHICAGO, Dec. 2.—Further prosecution against Charles Hudson Bette, alleged hypnotist of finance, said to have cunning designs on the life of ex-Judge Arta N. Waterman, has been taken by Judge Henry Horner of Probate Court.

Judge Horner appointed Attorney Edwin A. Menger conservator of the person of Mr. Waterman and gave him instructions to protect the former from any further attack and incapable of handling his estate. The prohibition is against acting under the direction of the Probate Court.

The prohibition is against Bette, known as Hudson. Friends of Waterman believe that this "crime fiction" of female-minded men and unsuspecting women of wealth has managed to get control of much of the property of the distracted ex-judge.

Attaching that two Chicago police officers and a woman gave false testimony in a divorce hearing before Judge Crosby of the Superior Court, on June 25, 1913, Joseph Henry Boyd of Chicago has filed a petition in the Equity section to have the decree of the court vacated.

Boyd filed a divorce libel against his wife, Florence May, and at the same time sought to have the decree of the court vacated.

Haunting Hawaiian Melodies recorded for the Grafonola

—Columbia Records that really convey the strange fascination of Hawaiian music, and the romantic atmosphere of the South Sea Islands.

The plaintive minor wail of soft female voices against the rich choral background of deep-throated male singers in

COLUMBIA DOUBLE DISC RECORD

NO. A 1616-75c

"ALOHA OE"

run by

Toots Pake Hawaiian Company

will thrill even those who have never visited Stevenson's beloved "Isle of Dreams," nor heard the distance-softened chorus floating faintly over the waters on velvet-dark Hawaiian nights.

"The Hawaiian Melody" on the reverse of this record is an odd blending of the wild melancholy and still wider merriment of Hawaiian instrumental music. No one can remain unresponsive to the all-but-human notes of the South Sea guitar, or the rhythmic throbbing of the ukulele—the appeal of Hawaiian music is wall-nigh universal.

For a novel "Musical Evening in the South Sea Islands," your dealer will be glad to make suggestions from among the many Columbia records listed in the special Hawaiian catalog, "Kamehameha," the original Hawaiian dance, and others, by the same inevitable company of Hawaiian musicians.

A political campaign protesting to have the citizens' conduct ticket, but it is fast written and regulated for the sole purpose of turning up the names of all the members of the city's various school teachers and probably of the citizens of Boston. It is printed in a newspaper style and bears the name of this G. G. A. men, and it is a very cleverly written letter.

We do not know this Mr. Phillips of the Boston district who has this audience leave an interest in our campaign at all. We find however that Mr. Phillips and Mr. Hamilton are in contact with them at the office of the Boston & Co. Mr. Hamilton was also in contact with them at the office of the Boston & Co.

apartment house in the Brighton district.

We have not the slightest doubt but that this is a scheme hatched by Mayor Curley and by his helpers, Mr. Alderman Berwin, to aid the election of the Curley candidate.

This circular is a underhand and unfair business as it is designed to be from one of our supporters but in reality is expressly designed to injure us because it asks citizens to vote for us to secure a reduction in the rate by cutting teachers' salaries dropping city expenses, adopting a so-called "every plan" as to stop the further building of school houses, shortening teachers' vacations, etc.

For no one of the things mentioned in this Philus Berwin Curley circular do we stand. We stand for the citizens who are to be fooled by this underhand attack, but to place the blame for such tactics where it belongs.

We do not favor the abolition of the day labor system as we do not favor dropping city expenses; we do not favor stopping further building of school houses; we do not favor reducing teachers' salaries; we do not favor shortening teachers' vacations.

Further, every citizen knows that it is not the City Council but the school Committee that has to do with all matters affecting the school teachers, and also that it is the Mayor who has authority to drop city employees and that the Council has nothing to do with it.

GIRL LEADS IN $2400 HOLDUP ON BRIDGE

A gang of young highwaymen, led by a girl known only as "Mia," tonight, by the police today for beating nearly to death John A. McKane of Haverhill street, Lawrence, and robbing him of about $2,400 on the West Boston bridge.

Not only does McKane urge the girl leader of the gang with having learned how much money he carried and in what pocket he kept it, while he entertained her in several West End cafes, but he declares that while he was being beaten into unconsciousness by the young men, she wielded the knits which slit open his pockets, and that she secured the loot.

After they had celebrated together McKane's success in winning $2,400 by the sale of some silver stock, he started to accompany "Mia," as he had her across the bridge on her way home. When they had reached nearly the centre of the bridge the thugs leaped out at him from behind one of the towers in the centre of the bridge.

The route, he insists, was selected by "Mia" against his protest. He declares that he suggested a more direct route to her home in Somerville, but that she overruled the suggestion. On this account he is certain that while they were celebrating, she found a means to arrange the holdup.

McKane said that he had come to Boston from Lawrence and sold some silver stock, collecting $2,000 from his broker. He declared to see some of the city. During the evening he met a woman in a drug store on Cambridge street, Boston. The two went to a liquor-wine in the North End. He says the woman told him she was married and lived in Somerville and he suggested that they walk to her home in Somerville. He says they walked up Haverhill street and he remembered she spoke to two men on Haverhill street and that the men walked on.

McKane and his companion walked through the West End and started across the Cambridge bridge. At the time the woman told him she remembered she spoke to two men on Haverhill street and that the men walked on.

About halfway between the draw and the Cambridge end of the bridge, McKane says, four other men approached him and his companion, and as they did the two men they had previously passed on the bridge came up behind him. Suddenly all six attacked him and he tried to fight them off.

McKane, badly beaten, got to the Cambridge end of the bridge, and there met Patrolman Anthony Dyma, to whom he told the story of the hold-up and who ordered the ambulances.

OUR FIRST DUTY IS TO MAINTAIN PEACE; OUR NEXT DUTY IS TO PREPARE FOR WAR

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1915

Opinion of Thomas Jefferson, Secretary of State, to Mr. Morris, dated June 13, 1793, says in part:

"Our Property, whether in the form of vessels, cargoes, or anything else, has a right to pass the seas untouched by any nation, by the law of nations; and no one has a right to ask where a vessel was built, but where she is owned. To the security which the law of nations gives to such vessels against all nations are added particular stipulations with three of the belligerents.

"Had it not been in our power to enlarge our national stock of shipping suddenly in the present emergency, a great proportion of our produce must have remained on our hands for want of the means of transportation to market. At this time, indeed, a great proportion is in that predicament."

Why Government Should Build and Equip the American Navy

THE United States navy does not possess a single high-explosive shell.

The navies of England, Germany, Austria, France and Japan are amply supplied with high-explosive shells.

Claude Kitchin, Democratic leader of the House, affirmed that our navy is much stronger and much more efficient than the German navy or the Japanese navy. Therefore, he is opposed to strengthening our naval defense.

That simply shows that Mr. Kitchin does not know what he is talking about, or else is saying the thing he knows not to be true.

Every single officer in the American navy knows in his heart that if the ship he belongs on was sent into battle today with ships of Germany or England or Japan his ship would have no chance at all.

Every American naval officer knows in his heart that if war was begun today between the United States and England, Germany or Japan, he and his crew would be certain martyrs.

No slow ship armed with out-of-date ammunition has any possible chance in fighting swifter ships armed with the high-explosive shells that have hammered to pieces in a few hours such fortresses as those of Liege, Namur, Antwerp and others like them.

The shameful fact is that these deadly shells were the invention of an American; that the invention was first offered to our own government, and that the inventor was driven abroad to find naval bureaus which could appreciate his powerful little weapon.

Why has the American navy no high-explosive shells? Because high-explosive shells prove the uselessness of slow-going, heavily armored battleships. And the huge profits of the Armor Trust are made from building just such battleships.

If the navy adopts high-explosive shells there will be no more ships with thick armor plates.

No more slow ships with thick armor plates, no more fat dividends.

You perceive the formula, don't you? And now you may begin to perceive why it is that we spend twice as much money on our navy as Germany spends on hers, and have a navy that is not as efficient as Germany's.

We have the best naval officers and the best naval crews in the world. Better or more efficient officers and men never trod a ship's deck. But what could they do against swifter ships armed with deadlier guns?

They could die without a chance.

That is what they could do, and would do.

President Promises Aid to Rural Credits Bill

THE President has made it known that he will actively support the Rural Credits Bill, which Senator Fletcher will reintroduce during the coming session of Congress.

In brief, the Fletcher bill provides for the establishment of regional mortgage banks, with authority to loan money up to fifty per cent. of the value of farm property.

The regional banks would procure their lending capital by the sale of bonds, based on the farm property mortgages.

Under the Fletcher bill, these farm land banks would be outside of any control by the Federal Reserve Board.

The purpose of the rural credits system is simply to enable farmers to borrow money on the security of their lands at approximately the rate first-class business concerns can borrow money on convertible securities.

The individual farmer, as things are, is at the mercy of the local money lender. He must pay what is demanded, and he comes pretty near to paying ten per cent. for money, when interest and fees are added together.

Under the rural credits system all farm land borrowers would fare equally, and the government regional mortgage banks would actually find the markets for big and little loans alike, at a uniform charge.

It is easy to see what a powerful aid to the prosperity of American farmers this system would be, and, of course, it needs no saying that all business prospers when farmers are prosperous.

Four far-reaching economic measures which the Hearst newspapers have steadily advocated are an adequate national defense, a government-owned merchant marine, the government ownership of transportation facilities and rural credits.

It is highly gratifying to the AMERICAN to see President Wilson adopting and endorsing, one by one, these fundamental political and economic reforms.

The Land of Make-Believe

PAK back upon the misty road that leads to Long Ago.
Beside a silver stream there dwells a little boy I know.
A little boy who is not strong like other little boys.
And cannot romp and run and play and fill the world with noise.
But lies upon a little cot the while his fancies weave
The most enchanting dreams about the Land of Make-Believe.

FOR him the river sings a song—a truly song, with words—
That brings an answering chorus from a thousand happy birds.

What Have You Done With Life?

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1915, Star Company

WHAT have you done, and what are you doing with life, O Man, O average man of the world—
Average man of the Christian world we call civilized?

What have you done to pay for the labor pains of the mother who bore you?

On earth you occupy space; you consume oxygen from the air.

And what do you give in return for these things?

Who is better that you live and strive and toil?

Or that you live through the tolling and striving of others?

As you pass down the street does any one look on you and say,

"There goes a good son, a true husband, a wise father, a fine citizen,
A man whose strong hand is ready to help a neighbor,
A man to trust?"

Unto their own souls what do women say?

Do they say, "He helped to make the road easier for tired feet,
To broaden the narrow horizons for aching eyes;
He helped us to higher ideals of womanhood?"

Look into your own hearts and answer, O average man of the world,
Of the Christian world we call civilized.

And what do men think of you—what do they think and say of you,
O average woman of the world?

Do they say, "There is a woman with a great heart,
Loyal to her sex, and above envy and evil speaking;
There is a daughter, wife, mother, with a purpose to life.
She can be trusted to mold the minds of little children;
She knows how to be good without being dull.
How to be glad and to make others glad without descending to folly;
She is one who illumines the path wherein she walks,
One who awakens the best in every human being she meets?"

Look into your own hearts, O woman, and answer this.
What are you doing with the beautiful years?

Is your today a better thing than was your yesterday?

Have you grown in knowledge, grace and usefulness?

Or are you rattling out the wonderful fabric knit by Time
And throwing away the threads?

Make answer, O woman, average woman of the Christian world!

STRIKES have been prevalent over the country, and laborers are demanding that the eight-hour system become universal.
It should become universal. No human being should work at any one occupation more than eight hours a day.

All the work of the world should be properly accomplished, and there could be comfort and property if every one in the world worked six hours a day. If there were no idle people there would be no necessity to overwork the laborers. The time is approaching when these matters will be more fully adjusted and equalized.

But meantime, while you are clamoring to have your hours of labor reduced from ten to eight, are you making any plans regarding what you will do with those extra two hours a day?

If you are a man do you intend to devote those wonderful one hundred and twenty minutes to your home? Do you mean to give your family more pleasure, and your wife and your children the happiness of your society, or are you thinking of the extra time you can spend at the club, or in the corner saloon, or in poolrooms and gambling houses?

If you are a single man is it your ambition to devote those two hours of time each day to studying and perfecting yourself in some line of endeavor which will enable you to fill a higher position later on, or are you hoping to indulge yourself in greater dissipation and triviality each day during your hour of leisure?

Results little short of miraculous can be achieved by applying one's self to a certain line of endeavor two hours every day. A trade can be acquired, a knowledge of music, a language, an accomplishment,
a picture can be painted, a book can be written, and many other wonderful things can be achieved by the person who resolutely applies himself two hours every day to some one purpose.

Reducing the time of labor does not mean for you a blessing unless you resolve that your brain, your body, your heart, your mind and your purse shall all share in the benefits which those two hours can and should bestow upon you and yours.

If you are a mother you can come in closer touch with your children by entering into their pleasures, by reading to them and with them, and by helping plan pleasures and recreation for them.

If you are a single woman living in a furnished room, you can devote that time to a school of correspondence or in acquiring some new light and new power in your chosen field of endeavor.

Two hours a day frittered away without a purpose or an aim or spent in frivolous or some worse for you than two extra hours of hard work. There was one woman whose husband was industrious and comparatively sober and orderly in his life, and she worked ten hours a day. Saturday evening was frequently a time of dread with her because then the man lollered at the corner saloon and came home the worse for liquor. But the remainder of the week he came directly to his home.

Finally all this was changed. The department struck for the eight-hour system and obtained it, together with an increase of wages.
Within a week after the inauguration of the new law the man began paying a daily visit to the saloon on his way from work.

Every night he returned to his family the worse for drink, and before six months had passed he was discharged as an incompetent workman.

This poor wife charged all her misfortune and unhappiness to the eight-hour system. But it was the lack of systematic thinking and a lack of ideals which caused the trouble. What ideals have you regarding life?
